

This semi-circular tower, possibly dating from the 13th Century, was an essential part of the town walls of Buis. It is open at the bottom, with arrow slits on the outside face. It defended the entrance to Buis from the direction of Vaison: the Brothers' Gate at the western end of Grand' Rue, with its twin tower on the south side of the road.